1. Draft Leadership Development White Paper Distributed; Community Members Identified for Planning and Steering Committee

Mary Beth Chew developed a draft white paper regarding the need for leadership development programming in Brunswick and Glynn County. This white paper will be used as the impetus for developing a new leadership development curriculum in Glynn County; providing a framework to discuss the issues and needs within the community, as well as a suggested timeline for implementation, and stated goals and outcomes. This paper was shared with the Archway Executive Committee for their review and approval, as well as the Leadership Development Task Force.

Mary Beth also met with Mason Waters, who agreed to serve as the chairman of a to-be-named Planning and Steering Committee, to discuss next steps and who to recruit to serve on this working committee. A preliminary list of approximately 15 community members’ names was drafted, and Mason agreed to contact them directly about participation. Mary Beth also contacted the Leadership Development Task Force to inquire if anyone from that group might be interested in serving on the Planning and Steering Committee. A first meeting of this group is tentatively scheduled for the middle of October.

2. Date Set for Community Revitalization Tools Training

The Brunswick-Glynn County Archway Executive Committee has partnered with the Carl Vinson Institute of Government to deliver a Community Revitalization Tools Training to key elected officials, staff, and community stakeholders on Monday, October 3. A long-term request of this community, the timing for this training goes hand-in-hand with the completion of the redevelopment plan for the Altama Community Transformation (ACT) District. Designed to educate the necessary elected bodies about the benefits of activating their redevelopment powers to encourage economic development, growth and revitalization; the training will be a 3.5 hour session led by Rob Gordon and hosted by the College of Coastal Georgia.

Community members invited include the full bodies and respective staff of the Glynn County Board of Commissioners, the City of Brunswick Board of Commissioners, the Glynn County Board of Education, the Brunswick and Glynn County Development Authority, the Archway Executive Committee, and the local legislative delegation; including Senator William Ligon, Representative Alex Atwood, and Representative Roger Lane. In addition, key community leaders also invited are Gary Colberg, President and CEO of Southeast Georgia Health System; Greg Carver, AVP for Planning and Construction at the College of Coastal Georgia and Chairman of the Archway Growth Task Force; Lupita McClennig, Planning and Government Services Director at the Coastal Regional Commission; and Jones Hooks, Executive Director of the Jekyll Island Authority.

3. Archway Graduate Assistant Begins Work to Develop Public Relations and Outreach Campaign for Elizabeth F. Correll Teen Center

Last spring, the Boys and Girls Club of SEGA, Inc. requested a Marketing or Public Relations
This fall, the Archway Partnership offered a graduate assistantship to Casie Walker, seeking a Master’s degree from the Grady School of Journalism’s Department of Advertising and Public Relations; she agreed to work on the project over the fall semester. Participating in a conference call on September 7, Casie talked with Brian Dolan, the Executive Director of the Boys and Girls Club, to establish a set of needs and goals for the outreach campaign. Brian stated a need to increase outreach to community teenagers, as the Center lacks a diversity of participation. He hopes to make the Center more attractive to all segments of the Brunswick and Glynn County community. Casie will visit Glynn County for a site visit to the Center on September 27.
